DISCOVER NEW WORLDS
Karnataka
Hampi, the world’s largest living heritage site was the capital of the mighty Vijayanagara Empire. This magnificent medieval city rivaled the most famous cities of the world. Hampi was developed by its rulers into a magnificent showpiece of imperial majesty & glory. The Kingdom was so rich that it took an army of 5 kings and 6 months to fully loot and plunder it. Such was the legend of the Vijayanagar empire whose legacy lives on in the streets and stones of their capital Hampi.

The Ruins of Hampi are charismatic even in its ruined state. Dotted around the hills and valleys over an area of about 25 sq kms are innumerable monuments which have stood the vagaries of man and time and still evoke memories of the grandeur of a bygone era.
Playground for Gods
If dreams were made of stones
It would be Hampi
